The Lancaster Commercial Club has accepted the invitation of the Louisville Inter-State Fair people, and will go in a body to that city on next Thursday, the 26th. A special train has been chartered and will start from the Lancaster depot about six or seven o'clock that morning. The fare has been made low, and all can afford to take the trip. The special train will return that night. It is very important that as many as possible go to Louisville, and show the people of the Falls City that their efforts to make it the leading city of the South are appreciated, and that we propose to lend them all the aid in our power. Up to the present time, the following have signified their intention to go: W H Kınnaird. ANNOUNCEMENT.

TO THE CITIZENS OF GARRARD COUNTY:

At the practically unanimous demand of my own party and urgent solicitation of other friends, I have at last consented to become a candidate for the office of County Attorney on the Republican ticket.

I had not expected to again ask for the suffrage of my fellow-citizens, but in view of the great number of electors, regardless of their party affiliation, who have seen proper to insist on my nomination, I have, with some reluctance, consented to accede to their request.

In thus again asking the citizens of my county for their support for this, one of the most important offices in the gift of ist people, I am not unmindful of the fact that it is an office fraught with the gravest responsibilities and duties, it having not only an important influence on the maintainance of peace and good order throughout the county, but is also perhaps, the most important factor in shaping and controlling the amount of taxes that your Fiscal Court finds it necessary to levy on your property each year to meet the current expenses of your county affairs.

And in this connection, I hope I may be pardoned for referring with some pride to my former administration of this important duty during the saults on all useless extravagance, and on certain most time honored leaks in your county treasury, the levy necessary to meet ail the current expenses of your county, and then leave a handsome surplus in your treasury at the close of the year, was less than one-third, barely more than one-fourth, of the Polish language taking the sound of amount of each and every successive levy for county purposes made since my retirement from that position.

And since the late decision of the Court of Appeals that the Court of the city of Lancaster no longer has jurisdiction to try whisky cases, and with blind tigers not only flourishing throughout the county but, with their Govand Sunday morning they all spoke of ernment Licenses all over the corporate limits of Lancaster, actually boasting of their dispensing to your sons, each and every week, three barrels of whisky and over two thousand bottles of beer, with the county attorney being hereafter practically the only safeguard to prevent their extending their sphere, and running even wider open than now,—this office is of even greater importance than ever before to such of our parents as wish to protect their boys from this most vicious and destructive influence, and it well behooves them to make no mistake in selecting and deciding who shall hereafter say whether this condition of things shall continue to exist.

With a high conception of the duties of this office, with a higher conwait on customers. If you want up- churches in the county are invited. Lammers' engine was used to pull the ception of my obligation to my own and my neighbor's sons, having steadtastly during the twenty-two years of my law practice refused to defend the keeper of a blind tiger, nor in the thirty-nine years of my existence taken a drink of whisky, if honored again by your election to this high trust, I pledge vou, that whatever of experience, ability or talent I may possess, shall be exerted to so administer its important duties as to not only encourage and promote peace and good order and a strict obedience to the law throughout the county, but also to prevent any and all illegitimate, improper and unnecessary drains and expenses on your county treasury.

Fearing that pressing business engagements, and the limited time left for men, who had been cutting hemp in my canvass may prevent my seeing each of you personally, I take this method the upper end of the county, came to of announcing my candidacy and assuring you that if my candidacy meets with eryman Arnold to take them to their your approval, I shall be very grateful for whatever assistance you may ren-Respectfully,

W. McC. JOHNSTON.

Lancaster, Ky. Sept. 19th, 1901.

THE question, "How long will the American people permit their country to continue to be a place of refuge for Anarchists, and other scums of the earth?" has been asked many a time during the past two weeks. The answer is easy. The red-handed devils will hold full sway here as long as the people elect numbskulls to make laws, men who care nothing whatever for the country's good, and only look for their own personal welfare. When the people select honest, business men as law makers, and fill their legislative halls with men who love their country better than they do officeholding, then we may expect laws enacted that will put up the bars and keep out the foreign trash. The time this week. trouble is the law makers are always toadying for votes, and will make no move that will probably injure the feelings of some foreign class of voters. To hades with this way of doing. America is for Americans, and if we cannot protect our chosen rulers from harm, we had best take down the sign and shut up shop.

ONE thing that doubtless furnishes inspiration to the Anarchists is the publication by some newspapers of nings & Co. villianous attacks on the rulers of the ed upon as all right, but on serious thought, it is a mistake, and a grave vicinity. mistake. It may be well enough for political papers to belittle a candidate, but after an officer is elected, it ought to be made a criminal offense to belittle or malign him. The cartoonist has done a great deal to bring public officers into ridicule, and this, together with the attacks by partisan writers does not speak well of a great and progressive nation. If a law were put in force prohibiting these villianous criticisms, it would spike the guns of the smallfry, two-for-a-penny public speakers and take away all the ammunition of some popinjay papers, but these could be done without just as well.

THE Louisville Times is the "Hustleinist" hustler of 'em all. Nothing of importance happens that the Times is not on the streets in a very few minutes thereafter telling all about it. The Times is under the best management in the South, and has the best equipment money can buy. During the president's lingering, at all hours of the day the newsboys could be heard crying "Here's the Times! E-xt-r-e-e! P-a-p u-r-r!" Col. R. W. Brown is entitled to great praise for having put the Times on the high footing it enjoys.

ALL of the "figureists" who make estimates upon the strength of the navies of the world put Uncle Sam down about fourth. They make their calculations from the point of equipment and make no allowances for the men behind the guns. In this latter point, your Uncle Samuel stands far ahead of any of the boys, and this is jackies can blow any foreign sailors off ber. the map while the latter are trying to load a gun.

THE case of Czolgosz is the first we remember of knowing where some little jack-legged lawyer didn't jump in at the small-fry of the profession desire and in that way get before the public.

SOMEBODY estimates that criminals cost the people of this country about $1,000,000,000 a year. If twenty-five dollars worth of rope was bought and used in hanging ninety-five per cent of the red-handed devils, this great expense would be checked.

OUR legislators put the bars up against poor John Chinaman, and said he must seek other climes, but nothing has ever been said against the Anarchists who hold open sessions and make no effort to conceal their devilish intentions.

WE will wager a new hat that Roose velt reads the riot act to a number of politicians before he has been in the presidential chair six weeks. Teddy is bull-headed, so they say, and will not be dictated to. Here's hoping.

Thomas has a negro lodge, and a brother of Fairfax Lodge, at Davis, has a copy of their by-laws which, for originality, ought not to have the cake alone but should take the whole bake-One section of their by-laws reads thus; "Any member found carrying a razor or pistol on his person away from his premises shall be fined 50 cents, the girl sent for the artist and and the weapon confiscated and sold and the proceeds donated to the charity fund." Another section reads:-"Any brother who shall be found in arrears for dues to the amount of one dollar and thirty-five cents shall be declared unfinancial." Other sections are equally amusing, and reminds us more of a comic almanac, and yet the Grand Lodge of Washington wanted to extend recognition to negro Masons -Mystic Tie.

Death of Noble Man.

The death of Gen. E. H. Hobson which occurred at Cleveland, O., last Saturday, cast a gloom over his legion of friends all over the state. He had been slightly ill for several days, but left his home in Greensburg to attend the encampment of the G. A. R., saying he felt much better. His death was very sudden and a great shock to veterans attending the encampment, nearly all of whom were personally acquainted with him. Gen. Hobson fought in the war with Mexico, and his bravery attracted much attention. In the civil war he commanded a Kentucky regiment, taking part in many important battles. He was brevetted a brigadier general for his bravery, and a commission as colonel in the regular army had been prepared for him when President Lincoln was assassinated. Gen. Hobson was a true Christian gentleman, and one of the most lovable men it has been our leasure to know. He was a personal friend of the editor of this paper, and none mourn his loss more than we. He was a prominent politician, but not one of the latter-day type, he had his convictions and expressed them in a gentlemanly way, and conceded to others the same privilege. He had a supreme contempt for rascality, and eyer held aloof from the tricky schemes sometimes practiced by those in politics. He was the true Kentucky gentleman, a Christian in every sense of the word, and his loss will be keenly felt in the community that was so fortunate as to claim him as a citizen.

CONSIDER THE LILIES. Within the house of prayer

The fair white lilies stand, Arrayed in grace and beauty rare By an Almighty Hand. Full many a troubled breast

That longs for peace to-day, is weak with doubt, by fears oppressed—Discouraged by the way. For promised strength we plead, Our daily cross to bear, But does the Lord Eternal heed Our feeble, struggling prayer?

Can the rough path we tread Lead upward, day by day, And are the grief and pain we dread God's angels in our way.?

O faithless heart, why seek To question God's design! With fragrant breath, the lilies speak Of love and care divine.

The hand that clothes in light Such frail and fading flowers, In every need will guide aright These deathless lives of ours!

Consider how they grow-The lilies, pure and fair; Shall not God's children much me His tender, changeless care?

A CONSECRATED PICTURE.

itory of a German Artist Who Por trayed the Crucifizion of Christ in Living Colors.

A poor Bohemian gypsy girl of remarkable beauty was employed by a German artist to sit for one of his 'studies." In his studio she saw an unfinished painting of the crucifixion, and asked him who "that wicked man" was, and what he had done to deserve such a terrible punishment.

The artist smiled at her ignorance and told her that the man nailed to the cross was not wicked, but good bove all good men in the world.

From that time her interest in the story of the cross never ceased. She was utterly untaught, and it was by her questions-rather grudgingly an swered by the painter, who had no real Christian sympathy-that she got her first knowledge of the Saviour of mankind. Noting her employer's lack of feeling, she said to him one day:

"I should think you would love Him, if He died for you." The remark fastened itself in the artist's mind. The death of Christ had appealed to him as a pictorial tragedy. The divine life of Jesus had never touched him. The ignorant Bohemian girl had presented the subject to him in another way, and it would not let him rest till he sought religious counsel, and ultimately became a servant and a worshiper of the Crucified. Under the inspiration of a new love he finished the picture, and it was hung in the Dusseldorf gallery, with this inscription: "I did this for thee; what hast thou done for Me?" Some time afterward he met his former model there, weeping in front of the painting. This time he could speak to her as a Christian. "Master." she said, "did He die for the poor Bohemians, too?"

THOSE MARRYING TEACHERS.

Each Other's Acquaintance in an Odd Way.

There was a romantic story of one ouple in particular. They were intro-uced by a mutual friend on shore as they stood at the rail when the transport was pulling out, some ten feet of San Francisco bay dividing the lady who presented the pair from the presentees, reports the Honolulu Commercial Advertiser. This introduction. however, though not the most formal, evidently was very effective. They be-came friends, and by the time the shades of night had settled and the mainland had faded from the horizon it was evident that they had found in each other's company some consola-tion for the hardship of leaving their happy homes to journey into a far country.

The second day left them violently in love, and on the third day the young man led the blushing maiden to the captain, with the request that the wain be made one as fast as he (the captain) could tie the knot. Capt. Buford, however, has had considerable experience, and has observed with some care the result of the moonlight at sea, and he advised the young per ple to wait until they arrived at Honolulu. This they unwillingly did, but it is said that the ceremony was performed by a local minister-a honey moon ride being takenby the newly wed people out to Waikiki, where the W. O. RIGHEY. eloquent sea waves voiced sweet sentiments while they indulged in the wedding dinner.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoes After Thirt

"I suffered for thirty years with diar rhoea and thought I was past being cured," says John S. Halloway, of much time and money and suffered much that I had given up all hopes of recovery. I was so feeble from the effects of the diarrhoea that I could do no kind of rhoea that I could do no kind of labor, could not even travel, but by accident I was permitted to find a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after taking several bottles I am entirely cured of that trouble. I am so pleased with the result that I am anxious that it be in the result who suffer as I have." For sale by R E McRoberts, druggist.

tinued to ebb as midnight approached no efforts were spared to keep the spark of life-glowing. Dr. Janeway, of New York city, arrived at the depot at 11:40 o'clock. George Urban was waiting for him, and they drove at a breakneek pace to the Milburn house. He was shown to the president's room at once, and began an examination of the almost inanimate form.

Secretary of the Navy Long arrived at the Milburn house at 12:06 o'clock. This was his first visit to the city, and he had the extreme satisfaction of seeing the president alive, even though he was not conscious of his visitor's presence. Secretary Long was visibly affected.

Shortly after midnight the president's breathing was hardly perceptible. Hispulse had practically ceased and the extremitles were cold. It was recognized that nothing remained but the last struggle, and some of the friends of the family who had remained through the day began to leave the house, not earing to be present at the final scene.

The members of the ramily, with the exception of the bereaved wife, were at the days the search hed Wer McKlybox was to 11:40.

The members of the itamily, with the exception of the bereaved wife, were at the death bed. Mrs. McKinley was in an adjoining room. Dr. Rixey was the only physician present.

The actual death probably occurred about 2 o'clock, it being understood that Dr. Rixey delayed the announcement momentarily to assure himself.

The announcement of the news to those waiting below was postponed until the members of the family had withdrawn. Through Secretary Cortelyou the waiting newspaper men received the notification in a trice there was the keenest excitement on the broad avenue, but there was no semblance of disorder.

Vice President Roosevelt had been notified early in the day of the critical state of affairs. There was no longer a doubt that in the approaching death of the president a complete change in the executive administration of the government would ensue.

Milburn House, Buffalo, Sept. 16.—Long before the hour set for the funeral ser-tive administration of the government would ensue.

Milburn House, Buffalo, Sept. 16.—Long before the hour set for the funeral services over the remains of the late President McKinley, the vicinity of the Milburn house was astir with preparations. At 10:30 o'clock the military and naval detachments took temporary station on West Ferry street immediately around the corner from the Milburn house. The national guard of the state of New York was represented by picked companies from the 74th and 65th regiments, under command of Cap. Howland. Then the trapping of the military arm of the service gave way to those of the United States navy as 50 men from the United States gunboat Michigan, under command of Col. L. T. Minnix, swung into position along side their military brethren in arms. After them came the blue jackets with open throated shirts, their loose black neck scarfs in sailor knots, with yellow leggins and sailor hats. The entire military and naval force formed in company on West Ferry street, and there awaited the time for the services to begin.

was Fresign McKiniey's lavorite hymn.

When the singing ended the clergyman read from the word of the Fifteenth chapter of the First Corinthians. Again the voice rose with the words of "Nearer, My God, to Thee." As the music died away the pastor spoke again.

"Let us pray," he said. His prayer was as follows:

solation upon all those who were asso-ciated with him in the administration of the affairs of the government; especially vouchsafe Thy presence to Thy servant, the affairs of the government; especially vouchsafe Thy presence to Thy servant, who has been suddenly called to assume the holy responsibility of our chief magistrate.

"O, God, bless our dear nation, and guide the ship of state through stormy seas; help Thy people to be brave to fight the battles of the Lord and wise to solve all the problems of freedom.

"Graciously hear us for comforting blessings to rest upon the family circle of our departed friend. Tenderly sustain Thine hand maiden upon whom the blow of this sorrow most heavily falls. Accompany her, O, God, as Thou hast promised, through this dark valley and shadow, and may she fear no evil, because Thou art with her.

"All these things we ask in the name of Jesus Christ, our Lord, who has taught us when we pray, to say, our Father who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who tresspass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, for Thine is the Kingdom, and the Power, and the Glory forever. Amen.

"May the Grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God the Father and communion of the holy spirit, be with us all, ever more. Amen."

quehanne, on the Marbie City on the banks of the shining Potomae, the nation's martyred president Monday made his last journey to the seat of government over which he presided for four and one-half years. The whole country seemed to have drained its population at the sides of the track over which the funeral train passed. The thin lines through the mountains and the sparsely settled districts thickened at the little hamlets, covered acres in towns, suddenly grown to the proportions of respectable cities and were congested into vast multitudes in the larger cities. Work was suspended in field and mine and city. The schools were disanissed, and everywhere appeared the trappings and tokens of woe. A million flags at half-mast dotted the hillside and valley and formed a hit of crope. The stations were heavy with the black symbols of mourning. At several places, Williamsport, Harrisburg and Baltimore, the chimes played Cardinal Newman's grand hymn. Taken all together the journey home was the most remarkable demonstration of universal personal sorrow since Lincoln was borne to his grave. Every one of those wno came to pay their last tribute to the dead had an opportunity to catch a glimpse of the flag-covered bler elevated to view in the observation car at the rear end of the train.

There were no other bit of color to catch the eye on this train of death.

PRESIDENT THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

left. Immediately back of the hearse marched a score of G. A. R. veterans, who had been assigned to this post of honor.

As the escort of soldiers swung slowly into Frankiln street, a few drops of rain fell. In two minutes it was raining hard. The long line of troops took their positions at attention. The casket was lifted from the hearse to the shoulders of the sailors and marines and was borne into Buffalo's official home. Outside there was not a man, so far as could be seen, who did not stand, defying the elements, with hat removed, respecting his dead president. Inside, with steps impressively slow and measured, the bearers made their way to the catafalque. A moment later and the body of President McKinley was lying in state.

At 12:25 o'clock exactly, the police were notified that the body could be viewed by the people. A minute later and the first of the long line came through the doors. Solemn visaged, in silence they moved past the bier to view the face of the president. Old men and weak women and strong men and children, leaders of men and laborers—all these classes were represented in the throng that filed past. During the first hour the people passed the catafalque at the rate of 115 to the minute. They seemed, as the afternoon wore on, to come more rapidly. Outside, the lines were amazing in their dimensions. The long line passed out Franklin street.

The crowds grew larger until those in charge found it necessary to extend the hours. Owing to the presence of so many waiting thousands it was decided to leave the city hall open until midnight. Then for hours longer the streets were dense with people and a constant stream flowed up the steps of the broad entrance into the ball and passed the bier. When the doors were estill in the streets.

The body laid in the city hall until Monday morning. It was then taken to the station by a military escort, and at $20 the president, consisting of seven cars, started for Washington. Mrs. McKinley, the president, consisting of seven cars, started for Washington. M

The locomotive was shrouded in black, the curtains of the cars in which set the lonely-stricken widow, the relatives of the president, cabinet and others were drawn. The whole black train was like a shuttered house save only for that hindmost car where the body lay guarded by a soldler of the army and a sailor of the navy.

All day the train was preceded about 15 minutes by a pilot engine sent ahead to test the bridges and switches and prevent the possibility of accident to the precious burden it carried. The train had the right of way over everything. Not a wheel moved on the Pennsylvacovering every detail. The order concluded:

"Every precaution must be taken by all employes to make this move absolutely certain."

Mrs. McKinley has stood the strain of the trying ordeal following the death of the president without breaking down, and her physician, Dr. Rixey, is encouraged to believe that she will go through the state cermonial without collapse.

The half hour she spent beside the coffin on the train Monday morning was followed by a period of depression, but Dr. Rixey induced her to sleep Monday afternoon. Now that she has gone through the wrials and fatigues of Sunday and Monday those closest to her feel there is little serious danger of immediate collapse. Their dread is for the present ordeal is over, and when the widow is back alone in the old house at Canton, with the flood of recollection and realization that must come upon her.

for her dead in the family apartments that now bring back but the saddest of memorles.

When the train arrived the casket was removed from the observation car. One of the large windows was lowered at the side and slowly and carefully the casket was slipped out through the opening and tenderly received upon the bent shoulders of the body bearers. Four artillerymen from Fort McHenry, Md., were on the right and four sailors on the left. Straightening themselves under their burden they walked slowly towards the hearse. Before the casket marched four officers. Maj. Parker. Col. Bingham. Capt. Gilmore and Maj. MacAuley, and that order, while the officers on either side and in the entrance stood with uncovered heads, the remains were carried to Sixth street and placed in the hearse. As the casket emerged a bugle note rose clearly and "taps" rang out. That was the only subject that broke the dead silence. Just beyond the entrance to the station President Roosevelt with the members of the cabinet had paused and had taken station so as to leave a broad space for the general cortege. They ranged themselves on the sidewalk indouble rows opposite each other and stood with bared heads as the corpse was carried to the hearse and drawn up at the side of the pate. The hearse was an exquisite affair, and was drawn by six coal black horses, each of whom was led by a colored groom in black livery.

The hearse bearing the third martyred president quickly moved away and was followed at once by President Roosevelt and those accompanying him. In the president's carriage beside Mr. Roosevelt were Secretaries Hay and Gage and Capt. Cowles. Secretaries Root and Hitchcock, Attorney General Knox and Postmaster General Smith followed in another carriage, while Secretary Uison, Secretary Cortelyou, Secretary Long and Senators Hanna and Fairbanks drove behind in other carriages. The citizens coming from Buffalo, officers of the army and navy and friends followed.

The military were already in line. As the procession swept from the Sixth stree Troops I and L, of the lith cavalry, from Fort Meyer, Va. Following the cavalrymen was the hearse, flanked on either side by the body bearers, with a detachment of signal corps men, bringing up the rear. The carriages containing the distinguished officials were next in line, that of President Roosevelt being immediately behind the signal corps. Scattered along at different parts of the procession were groups of army and navy officers, who had informally received the body at the railroad station. It was about half past nine when the head of the procession reached the white house grounds and turned into the driveway.

of the procession reached the white house grounds and turned into the driveway.

It was with simple ceremony and a silence that fitted perfectly the sadness of the occasion that the body of the late president was borne up Pennsylvania avenue to the white house and laid upon the bler in the great east room, where he had stood so often in the pride of his manhood to receive the greetings of the common people he loved better than himself.

It was fitting that such ceremony as there was should be severely military in character, in recognition of the fact that the president was the commander-in-chief of the United States army and navy. Nowhere was there a show of civilian participation. The streets about the station were filled with mounted troops and the station itself was occupied by stalwart soldiers and sallors in uniforms. It was not so on the broad stretch of avenue that led to the white house. There the people strained and crowded in a vast multitude against the stiff wire ropes which restrained them from the space marked out for the line of the procession. The silence that marked the progress of the funeral party through the national capital was profound. The people as a whole did not talk even in whispers, and the only sign of agitation in the great crowd was the silent pressing and striving against the ropes to see the mournful cortege which swept slowly along.
